

SPOKANE COUNTY MEDICAL EXAMINER'S OFFICE
Statement of Policy, Procedure and Practice

Policy Title: VIEWING OF BODIES AT HOSPITAL AND MEDICAL EXAMINER FACILITY

Policy:

Family members are not allowed to view bodies at the Medical Examiner's Morgue, because the morgue does not have any suitable space for viewing of bodies, to maintain the privacy of other decedents, and to prevent possible trace evidence contamination.

Hospital staff may allow for body viewing at their facilities, in non-homicide deaths, prior to transport to the Medical Examiner's facility.

In cases of hospital deaths when the Medical Examiner assumes jurisdiction, medical devices are not to be removed from the body. This is to allow for documentation of the correct use of these devices, and helps to establish the medical facts in any death.

Procedures and Practices:

Partly because there is no appropriate place for body viewing in the Medical Examiner's Office, it is not allowed. The Holy Family morgue facility body storage area is directly accessible to autopsy examination rooms. There is no way to separate members of the public from the examination rooms, and no way to preserve the privacy of one decedent from another. Remember that this exclusion does not mean that the family completely loses the ability to view the remains, only that this viewing is postponed.

- The autopsy staff is unable to adequately prepare the body for viewing. Funeral homes are very experienced in this preparation, and provide the privacy family members need in these circumstances.

The only exception to this policy is in the case of remains, which are unidentified after complete examination and investigation. Rarely, as a last resort, a family member or acquaintance may be asked to make a visual identification. Families are asked to view a high-quality photograph of the face as a first step in this process.

In non-homicide cases, hospital staff may allow viewing of the body at their facility prior to transport to the ME's office. In homicide-related deaths the Medical Examiner does not allow the body to be viewed whether in the hospital or at the scene of investigation.

- This is to protect any trace evidence that remains on the body. In many circumstances it is not possible for the Medical Examiner staff to determine if family members, or other individuals desiring to view the body, are potential suspects, witnesses, or have other involvement related to the investigation of the homicide.

As a corollary to the viewing policies, medical devices should not be removed from bodies whether death occurred at the scene of investigation, or hospital.

It is important to leave medical devices in position in order to document such things as endotracheal, and nasogastric tube position, and to have knowledge about whether needle puncture wounds are therapeutic or non-therapeutic.

- This applies equally to bodies which are to be viewed by family members at the hospital. If there are mitigating circumstances relating to this requirement, a Medical Examiner is to be contacted to determine if any devices can be removed for family viewing.
